

Renouncing and Breaking Word Curses

(Source unknown)

I renounce and break the curse that says I am not special.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I do not have the same standing as others.

I renounce and break the curse that says that others are smarter than me.

I renounce and break the curse that says that others are better or more valuable than I am.

I renounce and break the curse that says that others know more than I do.

I renounce and break the curse that says that others are more important than I am.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I'm not good at anything.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I cannot have, show or acknowledge emotions, especially in public.

I renounce and break the curse that says that no one cares about me.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't be taught anything.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I must always be in control.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I cannot voice my opinion.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I will never amount to anything.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I'm not as deserving as others.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't have my needs met.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I am invisible to others.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't be indebted to anyone.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't be loved.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can not dance, sing, shout, clap or raise my hands.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I have to work hard or perform to be loved and accepted.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't be used by God.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't hear from God.

I renounce and break the curse that says that my gifts from God are lesser than others.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't change.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I won't be healed.

I renounce and break the curse that says that I can't be wrong or I can't make a mistake.

I renounce and break the curse of lies that were spoken over me saying that I am worthless, a failure, slow, backward, not good enough, doomed, a black sheep.